VEVAY — A part of Vevay now is on the National Register of Historic Places.

Encompassing 275 historic buildings on 100 acres, the Vevay Historic District includes some of Indiana's finest Greek Revival buildings, according to the Indiana Department of Natural Resources. Two large brick mansions, the Schenck House and the Grisard House, date to the 1840s.

Both stand out for their refined, classically inspired porches and details.

The downtown area includes many well-preserved cast iron storefronts. George L. Mesker & Co. in Evansville made most of the storefronts in the 1890s and early 1900s. Other architectural treasures from the 1900s include the town's original Carnegie library, completed in 1917, which now serves as the town hall.

The listing on the National Register caps a multiyear effort by community activists, local agencies and the DNR's Division of Historic Preservation & Archaeology. Indiana has more than 1,970 listings on the National Register of Historic Places.

The Knox House, built in 1816, is another of the historic houses in the historic area.

Buyer sees new life for Victoria Inn

Plans include 10 apartments for families, older residents

The Victoria Inn, 801 E. Main St., Madison, has been purchased by Mark A. Cady, of Lexington, Indiana, who plans to combine the Inn's 18 residence hotel rooms into about 10 apartments in the coming year that he will rename Old Madison Inn. Victoria Inn has been padlocked since May after the city ordered the business closed due to code violations. (Courier staff photos by Mark Campbell)

The Victoria Inn has a new owner and next year will have a new name, a new look and a new role in Madison.

"It's going to be a really nice place," said new owner Mark A. Cady, who plans to combine 18 hotel rooms to make about 10 apartments that he plans to name Old Madison Inn.

"I'll get a better class of people," he said. The Inn's location at 801 E. Main St. is within walking distance of downtown. Cady said he thinks the apartments could appeal to "family people" as well as older residents who want to stay in Madison but not own a home.

For now, no one is living there. The building is padlocked. Meth residue has been eradicated.

Cady, who lives in Lexington, south of Hanover, bought the Victoria Inn from Mark E. Nay. Nay and his late mother had owned the inn for years. It had been built as a nice overnight hotel but over the years became an unkempt residence hotel visited often by the police. Neighbors complained, especially after a man was stabbed in a room there in early May this year; his attacker has been sentenced to 38 years in prison.

Three weeks after the attack, the city building inspector and the fire chief ordered the building vacated by May 31 and to remain empty until building and fire codes were met. Those conditions had not been finished when the tax lien on the inn was sold at auction Sept. 18 to a company that buys tax liens. The buyer of a tax lien does not get the deed for a year, and in the meantime the tax lien and costs can be paid, freeing the deed. The Victoria Inn's debt was paid and the deed was transferred to Cady. The sales price was $130,000, according to county records.

Cady, pending approvals from the city and from the state agency that governs building plans and permits for commercial buildings, plans to eliminate three apartments that are in the basement. "Nobody needs to live in a basement," he said. The basement will be the building's mechanical room, he said.

Cady, who said he started in the construction business 40 years ago when he was 14, plans to start the project after winter, but already has

Duke Energy Indiana winter aid increases to $750,000

Courier staff report

Duke Energy's winter assistance funding for Hoosiers who may have trouble paying their winter energy bills will be about $750,000 this year, an increase over last year. Customers in need are able to receive up to $300 toward their payments.

In a news release the company said it is contributing $650,000 for low-income customer energy assistance through its Helping Hand program this year. In addition, Duke Energy Indiana customers and employees have contributed more than $96,000 through November, and more is expected in December, raising this year's total energy assistance to about $750,000. A portion of the company's funding is the result of an agreement with the Indiana Office of Utility Consumer Counselor.

"We know the winter months can be a hardship for some, and each year our shareholders and customers contribute to help families and individuals who may be struggling to pay their winter energy bills," said Stan Pinegar, Duke's Indiana president. "This year, to reach more customers in need, we are increasing our shareholder contribution by $150,000. Last year, we were able to help more than 3,700 Hoosiers who needed assistance paying their electricity bills."

Duke Energy works with the Indiana Community Action Association and the Indiana Housing and Community Development Authority's Energy Assistance Program to determine eligibility and distribute funds.

"Our clients are most vulnerable during the winter, and no one should be left in the cold," said Elaine Zeider, manager of Family Services for the Area Five Agency on Aging and Community Services. "For years we've used Duke Energy's Helping Hand funds to keep Hoosiers warm and relieve some of the stress of winter bills."

Duke's website for Indiana customers says the Helping Hand Program provides financial assistance to eligible Duke Energy customers through a one-time $300 payment on a customer's account. To determine eligibility for the funds, customers should contact their local EAP agency.

For more information on the Helping Hand program, including eligibility for funds, participating agencies and how to make a donation, go to duke-energy.com/community/customer-assistance-programs/helping-hand

Major Indiana truck company to shut; 4,000 workers out

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — A trucking company with nearly 4,000 employees said Monday it filed for bankruptcy and will shut down all operations, just days after two former officials were charged in a fraud scheme. Celadon Group has faced significant costs related to a federal investigation and also must deal with debt and "enormous challenges" in the industry, chief executive Paul Svindland said in a statement. William Meek, 39, and Bobby Lee Peavler, 40, were indicted on conspiracy and other charges. They knew the value of a substantial portion of Celadon's trucks had declined and that many trucks had serious mechanical issues that made them unattractive to drivers, according to the indictment. Earlier this year, Celadon agreed to pay $42.2 million to settle securities fraud allegations stemming from falsely reporting profits and assets.

Terre Haute casino may get OK next year

INDIANAPOLIS — Officials could give the go ahead for a new casino in Terre Haute sometime early next year. Indianapolis-based Spectacle Entertainment was the only company submitting an application for the Terre Haute casino license by this past week's deadline set by the Indiana Gaming Commission. Spectacle is proposing to build a $125 million casino and potentially hire 600 workers. Gaming Commission director Sara Gonso Tait said its staff could complete its review of Spectacle's application during the first three months of 2020. More than 60 percent of Vigo County voters supported allowing the casino in a November referendum. Spectacle bought the Gary casino operation along Lake Michigan last year and lobbied state legislators to allow its move to an on-land location along Interstate 80/94.

Driver's manual to have 4 more languages

INDIANAPOLIS — The Indiana driver's manual will be translated into four more languages to settle a federal lawsuit. The agreement will have the Indiana Bureau of Motor Vehicles by March 2021 provide the manual in Arabic, Burmese, Mandarin and Chin, a language spoken in Myanmar. That deal resolves a lawsuit filed last year by immigrant assistance group Neighbor to Neighbor of South Bend, which said the BMV was discriminating on the basis of a person's national origin by providing the manual in only English and Spanish. A federal judge in Indianapolis dismissed the lawsuit this past week after the settlement was reached between attorneys for the state and the American Civil Liberties Union of Indiana. The BMV didn't admit any discrimination in the agreement, which requires the new translations be available for free on the agency's website. The four new languages were picked for manual translations because an average of at least 500 people over the past three years have taken the driver's knowledge exam using them, according to the agreement.

Purdue plans new bands, data buildings

WEST LAFAYETTE — Purdue University officials have approved plans for new buildings on the West Lafayette campus that will house the school's bands and data science programs. Plans for the $20 million Bands and Orchestra Building will give dedicated space to Purdue's more than 30 ensembles, concert bands and jazz bands. The (Lafayette) Journal & Courier reported those groups have practiced for years in the basement of Elliott Hall of Music and in scattered sites across campus. Construction will be paid for with private donations and is expected to finish by December 2021. The new $40 million Data Science Building will be among a string of tech-related construction projects by Purdue. The school's Board of Trustees voted Friday to approve the four-story building with classrooms and research space.

Hotel project off after incentives nixed

MERRILLVILLE — A hotel developer has dropped plans for a $356 million project near one of the busiest northwestern highway interchanges after local officials balked at the company's incentives request. Merrillville-based White Lodging pitched its plan last year for a complex including an event center, four hotels, an office building, condos, restaurants, a craft brewery and a 30,000-square-foot horse-riding arena at U.S. 30 and Interstate 65. That came months after the company demolished the Star Plaza Theatre, a hotel and office buildings it had at the site. White Lodging spokesman Mike Banas told The (Northwest Indiana) Times that the company founded by the late billionaire Dean White doesn't have other development plans there and is open to selling the 40-acre site. The project had stalled since November 2018 when the Lake County Council balked at a requested $75 million incentive that would have been paid for with a new 1 percent food and beverage tax in the county. Merrillville council member Shawn Pettit said he had hoped the White family would continue with the project after the town approved a tax-increment financing district that could have contributed up to $105 million over 15 years.

Nestle seeks tax break for $200M project

ANDERSON — Nestle USA is planning a $200 million investment at its central Indiana production facility. The company is asking the Anderson City Council for a tax break as part of a plan to install new equipment at the factory along Interstate 69. The (Anderson) Herald Bulletin reported Nestle expects to add 30 jobs at the plant, which makes Coffee Mate and Boost energy drinks. Anderson Mayor Thomas Broderick Jr. said he's thrilled Nestle continues to invest in the site and believes the 70% property tax break for seven years is reasonable. The city's development director said Nestle has invested about $1 billion since picking Anderson in 2006 and now has more than 800 employees there.

Electricity provider plans more solar farms

PERU — A company that provides electricity to dozens of communities has been working to add at least 17 solar farms to its system, officials said. The Indiana Municipal Power Agency said it now has 21 solar farms generating electricity around the state and is building more at it aims to have half of its power coming from renewable sources by 2030. One farm being planned by the company near Peru would cost $19 million and have about 40,000 solar modules on a 73-acre site, according to The Kokomo Tribune. That farm could be completed in 2021. Vice president Jack Alvey said the power agency wants to build a solar park in each of its some 60 Indiana communities where it provides electricity to municipal utilities.

Record for deer killed in gun season

FRANKFORT — Hunters killed a record number of deer in Kentucky during the recent gun season, surpassing last year's record. Hunters killed about 107,000 deer during the 16-day season that ended on Nov. 24, up from about 106,800 deer killed a year ago, the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources said in a news release. The increase in kills over the past two years has coincided with longer seasons in some areas where previously only 10 days were allowed for hunting. Hunters requested the increase to 16 days, which now happens across all zones in Kentucky. Acting Deer and Elk Program coordinator Kyle Sams said bag limits in place for deer ensured herd numbers remained in good shape.

Police seize air fryer with 20 pounds of meth

LOUISVILLE — It may be the holiday season, but police confiscated an unusual gift being delivered to a Kentucky man's home — a package with about 20 pounds of meth that was shipped through the mail inside of an air fryer. Narcotics officers were able to intercept the parcel containing about $100,000 worth of drugs, Louisville Metro police said in a Facebook post Saturday. The package was delivered to a suspect's home where officers obtained a search warrant to collect it, the Major Case Unit confirmed to news outlets. The suspect wasn't home at time of seizure. Photos posted by the police department show at least seven packages of drugs wrapped in plastic alongside the Hamilton Beach brand air fryer and the box it came in.

Man arrested in 1990 rape after DNA tests

LOUISVILLE — DNA from previously untested items in a rape kit led police in Kentucky to arrest a man in a 1990 case. News outlets report Roscoe C. Smith, 71, of Louisville, was arrested Saturday on charges of rape, sodomy and burglary. Smith is accused of forcing his way into a woman's home in December 1990, according to an arrest citation. A rape kit was performed at a hospital after the alleged incident. The citation said the woman requested last summer that the case be reopened. Two untested items from the rape kit were found and sent to a crime lab for DNA testing.

Journalism teacher sues ex-student

LEXINGTON— An associate journalism professor at the University of Kentucky is suing the school, its Title IX coordinator and a former student who complained about him, alleging defamation and retaliation. Buck Ryan filed the lawsuit last week, the Courier Journal reported. It accuses the university of weaponizing its Office of Institutional Equity to retaliate against him whenever it faces public criticism, such as when Ryan was punished in a 2016 "sexual misconduct" case for what he said was, in part, singing a song with sexual lyrics. The former student named in Ryan's lawsuit had filed a Title IX complaint accusing the professor texting and calling her outside of class time and on weekends, and even offering her tickets to a UK football game, which she declined. She also spoke about it with the student newspaper, which Ryan said defamed him and damaged his reputation. The university moved to fire Ryan last year after it found he was requiring students to buy his textbook and was keeping undisclosed royalties. A faculty committee later asked the school drop the termination proceedings. He sued school officials for defamation and retaliation in April. That case was dismissed last month.

New manager named for Perryville Battlefield

PERRYVILLE — A Civil War author, re-enactor and tour guide has been selected as the new manager at Perryville Battlefield State Historic Site, Kentucky State Parks Commissioner Donnie Holland said. Bryan Bush, who was appointed Friday, has published more than a dozen books on the Civil War and Louisville history and has consulted with museums and film productions, Holland said in a statement. The Louisville native is the official Civil War tour guide for Cave Hill cemetery, has been a Civil War re-enactor and served as a board member and curator for a Civil War museum in Bardstown. Bush has a background in retail and has degrees from Murray State University and the University of Louisville. Perryville Battlefield is the site of the largest Civil War battle in Kentucky.

Kentucky paid $600K for probe but not known what it produced

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — An Indiana law firm has been paid at least $600,000 by Kentucky Gov. Matt Bevin's administration for an investigation of former Gov. Steve Beshear's administration.

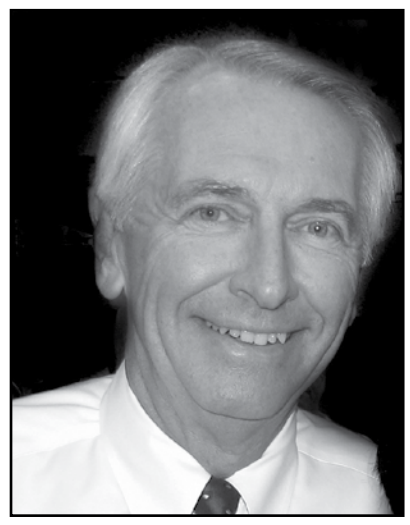

The Lexington Herald-Leader obtained the information through an Open Records Act request to the state Finance and Administration Cabinet. The Bevin administration refuses to release what it received from the Indianapolis law firm Taft Stettinius and Hollister.

The newspaper asked for any reports from the firm but only received a 16-page report from January 2017. The report said state employees in the Steve Beshear administration were pressured to donate to the 2015 campaigns of Jack Conway for governor, Andy Beshear for attorney general, the Kentucky Democratic Party and the Capitol Club with the threat of losing their jobs. The Capitol Club raised money for Democrats from state employees in the Frankfort area.

Gov.-elect Andy Beshear, who has served as attorney general for four years and is the son of Steve Beshear, "will be reviewing this and other issues" when he takes office Dec. 10, said Crystal Staley, a spokeswoman for Andy Beshear.

Pamela Trautner, a spokeswoman for the Finance Cabinet, told the newspaper in May that a draft report from the law firm "with additional findings is in progress but its release has been impeded by the refusal of former Beshear employees to comply with subpoenas from the firm."

In November, Trautner told the newspaper that any documents concerning the firm's work for the state were preliminary but wouldn't say whether any report from the firm has been turned over to any investigative agency.

Steve and Andy Beshear have both criticized the contract. Marisa McNee, a spokeswoman for the Kentucky Democratic Party, said this week it had no comment.

Court leaves Kentucky ultrasound law in place

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court on Monday left in place a Kentucky law requiring doctors to perform ultrasounds and show fetal images to patients before abortions.

The justices did not comment in refusing to review an appeals court ruling that upheld the law.

The American Civil Liberties Union had challenged the law on behalf of Kentucky's lone remaining abortion clinic. The ACLU argued that "display and describe" ultrasound laws violate physicians' speech rights under the First Amendment.

The federal appeals court in Cincinnati upheld the Kentucky law, but its sister court in Richmond, Virginia, struck down a similar measure in North Carolina.

The Supreme Court had previously upheld "informed consent" laws for women seeking abortions. The court will hear an abortion case in March, over Louisiana's attempt to require doctors who perform abortions to have admitting privileges at local hospitals.

Doctors' speech also has been an issue in non-abortion cases. The federal appeals court in Atlanta struck down parts of a 2011 Florida law that sought to prohibit doctors from talking about gun safety with their patients. Under the law, doctors faced fines and the possible loss of their medical licenses for discussing guns with patients.

In Kentucky, doctors must describe the ultrasound in detail while the pregnant woman listens to the fetal heartbeat. Women can avert their eyes and cover their ears to avoid hearing the description or the fetal heartbeat. Doctors failing to comply face fines and can be referred to the state's medical licensing board.

The ACLU called the law unconstitutional and unethical. ACLU lawyer Alexa Kolbi-Molinas said that the Supreme Court "has rubber-stamped extreme political interference in the doctor-patient relationship."

The law was passed in 2017 and was signed by the state's anti-abortion governor, Republican Matt Bevin. He narrowly lost his reelection bid last month. But Republicans remain in control of the state legislature.

IU board OKs shifting SAT, ACT to campuses to decide

By MICHAEL RESCHKE
(Bloomington) Herald-Times

RICHMOND — Soon, undergraduate students applying to Indiana University won't have to take a standardized test to be admitted.

The IU Board of Trustees approved a revision to the university's admissions policy during its meeting Friday at IU East. The revision will allow campuses to decide whether applicants will be required to submit a score from a standardized test, such as the SAT or ACT.

The University Faculty Council and IU administrators backed the proposal, so it's unlikely an entire campus will decide to continue requiring the test scores. However, some individual programs, such as the Kelley School of Business Direct Admission program, may still require them, said John Applegate, executive vice president for university academic affairs.

IU campuses can choose to stop requiring a standardized test score for undergraduate applicants beginning next year. That means the new policy will start with students applying in the fall of 2020 to enroll in the fall of 2021.

More than 1,000 accredited colleges and universities either do not use standardized test scores in their admissions process or have made them optional, Applegate said. In Indiana, Ball State University recently became a test-optional institution.

Colleges and universities are making this move in an attempt to level the playing field for first-generation and low-income students. For IU specifically, the genesis was joining the American Talent Initiative, said Lauren Robel, provost of the Bloomington campus.

The initiative's goal is to enroll 50,000 additional low- and moderate-income students in higher education by 2025. A number of colleges and universities have become members of the American Talent Initiative, including Yale University, the University of Notre Dame and the University of Michigan.

As part of its efforts to help achieve the initiative's goal, IU officials started looking at standardized test scores. The tests were originally created as a way to level the playing field at a time when acceptance at elite institutions was primarily based on connections, such as who a student knew or whether their parents attended, Robel said.

What happened over time is that families with means began paying for additional resources so their children would score better on those tests.

Studies have shown the difference in outcomes between students who did and didn't submit standardized test scores at test-optional institutions was trivial, Robel said.

GPAs were within 0.05 percent of each other and graduation rates were within 0.6 percent, she said.

Standardized test scores are not useless, Applegate said, but he feels overall GPA is a better predictor of academic preparation. That's because it shows both ability and motivation, which is important for success in college, he said.

IU uses what administrators describe as a holistic approach when considering applicants. Everything from overall GPA to grade trends over time to essays will be considered.

Applicants to IU campuses that choose to implement a test-optional admissions policy can still submit a standardized test score.

Nasser Paydar, chancellor at Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis, said he expects about 90 percent of applicants will still do this because they will be applying to multiple institutions.

Some of those other institutions will likely require the scores.

In addition to the test-optional admissions policy, the board approved a change to the wording on IU's admissions application. The application includes a question about criminal history.

Consistent with the university's holistic approach, simply having a criminal record does not bar an applicant from being admitted. The nature of the record is considered.

The application will still have a question about criminal history, but it will now include language making it clear that a criminal record will not automatically prevent someone from being admitted, Applegate said.

Rep. Lucas to again push to loosen some marijuana laws

By ANDY EAST
(Columbus) The Republic

Indiana Rep. Jim Lucas, R-Seymour, is hoping his latest push to relax some of the state's marijuana laws will not go up in smoke.

He plans to introduce two bills in the next legislative session that would legalize medical marijuana across Indiana and reduce penalties for possessing less than one ounce of the drug to the level of a "seat belt violation."

Lucas authored two similar bills during the 2019 legislative session, but both failed to make it out of committee. The next legislative session starts Jan. 6.

"I'm introducing medical cannabis legislation and also another bill that takes possession of less than an ounce and/or paraphernalia down to a (Class) D infraction, which is basically a $25 fine," Lucas said.

Lucas' latest push to roll back some of Indiana's marijuana laws comes as two neighboring states — Illinois and Michigan — are beginning to regulate and allow the sale of marijuana for recreational use. On Sunday, legal sales of recreational marijuana started in Michigan. Illinois is expected to start recreational sales on Jan. 1. Approximately one out of every six Indiana counties, or 15 out of 92 counties, border Illinois or Michigan.

Currently, 11 states and the District of Columbia have legalized the recreational use of marijuana, according to the National Conference of State Legislatures. An additional 15 states have decriminalized the possession of small amounts of marijuana. A total of 33 states — including Illinois, Michigan and Ohio — have approved medical marijuana programs.

Under Indiana law, possession of less than 30 grams of marijuana is listed as a Class B misdemeanor as long as the offender has no prior drug convictions, Indiana Code states. If an individual has a prior drug conviction, possession of less than 30 grams of marijuana is a Class A misdemeanor. Possession of more than 30 grams, along with a prior drug conviction, is listed as a Level 6 felony.

"What's going to happen, and everybody knows this, we're going to have otherwise responsible adults go to those states and purchase something that is a legal product in those states and they're going to come back to Indiana and be made a criminal," Lucas said.

However, it remains unclear whether Lucas' proposed bills would gain enough traction to make it through the General Assembly and be signed into law by Indiana Gov. Eric Holcomb, who, as recently as February, has said he would not support the legalization of medical or recreational marijuana as long as the drug is illegal at the federal level.

The U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration classifies marijuana as a Schedule 1 drug, the same classification as heroin and LSD.

Despite opposition from Holcomb, Lucas said he still feels there is a "50-50" chance that bills could be signed into law.

State Sen. Greg Walker, R-Columbus, however, is not quite as optimistic and said he does not foresee medical marijuana "being a big topic of discussion this year."

Walker said he is opposed to the legalization of medical marijuana and the reduction of penalties for possession of small quantities of the drug largely because marijuana remains illegal on the federal level and his concerns about marijuana use among young people,

State Rep. Ryan Lauer, R-Columbus, said he is looking forward to reading Lucas' bills, but cautioned that state lawmakers need to "be very wary about going down the path of legalization."

Lucas, however, acknowledged that marijuana can be abused like alcohol and other drugs, including legally-obtained prescription drugs, but said the benefits of medical marijuana far outweigh the negatives.

A No Trespassing sign hangs from a door at the Victoria Inn. The property has been purchased by Mark A. Cady, of Lexington, Indiana. (Courier staff photos by Mark Campbell)

The door to the basement utility room at the Victoria Inn. The new owner plans to eliminate the three basement apartments and to turn it into the building's mechanical room.

done a lot. He said he and his workers hauled out truckloads — "tons and tons"— of mattresses, clothing, furniture, anything that residents left behind.

But first, there was the meth residue.

Unbeknownst publicly until now, the Victoria Inn's basement had not been decontaminated after police found methamphetamine ingredients, meth on a spoon and meth in a plastic bottle in the trash almost five years ago.

Police went to the Victoria Inn on the afternoon of Dec. 5, 2014, on a report of the theft of a laptop and a cell phone from a resident's room. Later that day police were again called to the Victoria Inn because of a domestic fight. While there, an officer looked around for the stolen items. A resident who lived in a basement apartment gave permission for the officer to follow him there. The officer saw what he believed to be meth ingredients in a bedroom and called a detective, who confirmed the find. The detective found a meth use item and a plastic bottle likely used to make meth in a trash dumpster, according to the police report.

The Indiana State Police Clandestine Laboratory Response Team was called to safely remove the ingredients, spoon and plastic bottle. The Jefferson County Health Department was notified, and on Dec. 31, 2014, it issued an order banning occupancy or use, and prohibiting the sale of the property until after decontamination by one of the companies on a state-approved list of qualified inspectors.

Tammy Monroe, director of the health department, said that only the basement was affected by the no-occupancy order. The kitchen, three apartments — two with two bedrooms and one with one bedroom—a laundry room and two HVAC units were in the basement. Nay gave a tour of the Victoria Inn to two staffers from the Madison Courier in the summer, but did not include the basement, saying that no one lived there. He did not disclose the basement's meth lab history.

The state police have an online list of busted meth lab locations and whether they have been cleaned, and a state law requires all subsequent purchasers to be aware that a lab was on the property, even after it has been cleaned. A form is attached to the deed that either says a lab was found and lists the restrictions or that a lab was found and cleaned.

Cady contacted After Meth Affordable Remediation of Bloomfield on Aug. 12 this year. It is on the state-certified list of remediation contractors. Mike Bolton, a Qualified Inspector – the title the state rules use — swabbed areas throughout the basement and sent them to a laboratory in Oregon. The results showed meth residue above the state's limit for what is acceptable in all of the samples. Bolton sprayed decontaminant chemical throughout the basement. Retesting showed zero meth residue.

Cady said he had wanted less-extensive initial sampling in the upper two floors because testing and decontamination are very expensive. But because there were two HVAC units that both served the whole building, the inspector told Cady that the whole building would have to be tested, Bolton wrote in his report.

Technically, the basement was all that needed to be tested and if necessary, decontaminated. Cady agreed to complete testing.

"I knew it needed to be done," Cady said.

Bolton took 78 samples from the Victoria Inn on Sept. 21 from the first and second floors. All of them tested positive for meth but slightly fewer than half of the samples —36 — exceeded the state standard for an acceptable test result.

When the lab results came back from Oregon, Bolton decontaminated the building, tested again and sent the samples to Oregon. They all came back with 0.0 readings.

Monroe sent a letter to the county recorder's office saying that the Victoria Inn had been cleared. The letter and Bolton's report become part of the deed file for the property.

Meth residue stays in place a long time, so it isn't known if the residue eradicated from the Victoria Inn came from the ingredients found in December 2014 or from meth making or smoking before or since.

When meth is made, or "cooked," toxic vapors are released from the chemicals used. These vapors and residue from the chemicals can land on floors, walls, ceilings, carpets, drapes, plumbing fixtures — anywhere there is a surface— and can be carried through ductwork. The residue includes meth itself. Also, the same kind of residue is formed when meth is smoked, according to the state health department.

"Possible chronic health effects from exposure to methamphetamine lab residue can include disorientation, respiratory irritability, behavioral changes, neurological damage, liver damage, or kidney damage," according to the Indiana State Department of Health website. "Acute health effects from exposure to meth lab contaminants can include dizziness, lack of coordination, shortness of breath, chest pain, and chemical irritation to the skin, eyes, nose, or mouth. The drug is potent, and so exposure to a small amount could cause adverse health effects."

People can get meth residue inside them three ways, the state Health Department site says: "inhalation, absorption through the skin, and ingestion through hand to mouth contamination."

"Residue can cause a variety of health problems, especially for those at risk, the elderly, the infirm and children," the state health department website says. "Young children are a particularly high risk population because they spend approximately 80 percent to 90 percent of their time indoors and are more likely to be playing on surfaces that would retain residue, i.e., furniture, carpets. Toddlers are especially susceptible to exposure through the hand-to-mouth pathway (particularly in children who are teething)."

When a state-certified inspector goes to a meth lab site, he or she takes swab samples using procedures set out in recognized standards. The procedure used at the Victoria Inn was for samples in each room to be tested to be taken at or near the center of the ceiling, at or near the center of the floor, from two walls and from plumbing fixtures. Production of one pound of meth results in 6 pounds of waste, according to the state health department. Other online reports say the waste can range from 5 to 7 pounds. The waste often is dumped down toilets or sinks.

The samples must be tested at a state-approved laboratory. The laboratory tests for the presence of meth, but the meth is what is called a "surrogate" or marker. The ingredients and methods of making meth vary, causing the toxic vapors released to vary. The vapors and residues are what are dangerous, so finding meth means that the toxins are present.

Fire call on Vine Street Sunday

The Madison fire and police departments responded Sunday afternoon to a report of a structure fire in the 600 block of West Main Street. When they arrived, Fire Chief Bill DeVries said in a news release, they found no fire conditions. After making contact with the building owner it was found that a small portion of siding and rear deck area were on fire. The fire was extinguished and the structure was checked for any extension in the other areas. None was found. The affected siding and deck material were removed. All occupants were able to exit the structure and no injuries were reported. (Courier staff photo by Mark Campbell)

Students suspended in bullying incident

By ANDY BELL-BALTACI
Daily Journal of Johnson County

A Roncalli High School football player has been accused of filming a student with Down syndrome urinating and showing the film to one of his teammates.

Weeks later, in retaliation for telling on them, they allegedly forced him to put his mouth on a player's chest and recorded that as well. They told him, according to the family's lawyer, if he said anything about it this time, they would kill his family.

Since then, some members of the team have been suspended and the Indianapolis Metropolitan Police Department is investigating, but the boy's mother, Lesli Woodruff, said school officials did not act appropriately or quickly enough after the bullying incidents were reported.

The alleged incidents occurred early in the season, in the weeks leading up to the team's homecoming game. The victim worked with the team as a student manager.

The Archdiocese of Indianapolis said in a written statement it was aware of the incidents and had suspended the students involved. Roncalli High School staff also reported the incidents to the Department of Child Services, according to the statement.

"Thus far, students have been suspended and one is no longer attending Roncalli," the statement said.

"Following the outcome of the police investigation, further action may be taken. The safety and well-being of every student is of utmost importance to us, and we are committed to continuously seeking ways to improve practices and procedures related to student safety.

"We remain confident that Roncalli High School offers an exceptional educational and faith formation experience in a safe, secure environment."

Scott gets $60K grant

The Scott County Sheriff's Department will be implementing a Jail Chemical Addiction Treatment program after Indiana Attorney General Curtis Hill (center) went to Scott County last week to provide Sheriff Jerry Goodin and County Prosecutor Chris A. Owens with details of the program and a $60,000 grant to begin. Material provided about the 90-day program, which is in partnership with the Indiana Attorney General, said it serves a population residing in a jail setting before sentencing for felony crimes or probation violations. Goodin will be arranging accommodations within the jail for program participants. See WKMNews.com for more details. (Photo by WKMNews)

Southwestern survives key injury to knock off Olympians

Southwestern entered its Ohio River Valley Conference girls-boys basketball doubleheader against Jefferson County rival Shawe the favorite on paper and played up to that expectation, dominating the Hilltoppers in a pair of wins at the Meny Gymnasium on Friday night.

GIRLS
Southwestern 42, Shawe 18

Southwestern's defense harassed Shawe through four quarters and as the Hilltopper turnovers piled up the Lady Rebels built a lead en route to a 42-18 win for their sixth win of the season.

Shawe committed 34 turnovers in the game against the Southwestern three-quarter court trap and scored just two points each in the second and third quarters. The Lady Rebels led 12-5 after the first quarter and went on runs of 9-2 in the second frame and 13-2 in the third quarter, leading by as many as 29 points.

"We did the things that we needed to do to win the game tonight," Southwestern head coach Devin Brierly said. "I saw some things out of our team tonight that I was really pleased with and the way we played defense tonight is the way we need to play all year. I told our girls that we need about 20 deflections per game. We're not tall but we are quick and athletic. That allows us to score in transition and I think that was the key tonight."

Despite 20 turnovers, Southwestern overcame miscues and used defense to score 29 points off of Shawe turnovers, attempting double the shots the Hilltoppers took in the game. Bella Marcum led all scorers with 17 points on 8-of-10 shooting while also posting six rebounds. Ellie Foley joined her in double figures with 11 points and led the team with four assists.

Shawe was led by Abigail Hill with 10 points on 4-of-8 shooting including a 2-of-3 clip from beyond the arc. Only three players reached the scoring column as the Lady Hilltoppers shot just 8-of-25 from the field for 32 percent.

Southwestern (6-2, 1-0 ORVC) travels to Milan for a conference game on Tuesday.

Shawe (1-4, 0-2 ORVC) hosts Scottsburg on Tuesday.

High-octane Cubs roll to 83-67 win over Corydon

Cubs open HHC with win over Jennings County

CORYDON — Madison coach Sherron Wilkerson was sure Corydon Central couldn't keep up the torrid shooting pace the Panthers showed in the first quarter and a half and he proved to be right.

After six lead changes and seven ties through the first 10 minutes, Madison hit the gas and pulled away to post an 83-67 win on the road Saturday in Corydon.

Wilkerson, who wants his Cubs to play and up-tempo style in the 80s, was initially surprised at Corydon's ability to keep up. But he was confident that it wouldn't last.

"I'll be honest with you, I didn't anticipate those guys being able to keep up with our pressure but they did," Wilkerson said. "We thought coming in that we might need to play a little more zone than we wanted because we're a bit light on numbers and we ended up playing it more than we thought. But it just goes to show how well our guys can adjust on the fly. They played very well."

Corydon (1-3) came out firing early in the game, hitting five 3-pointers in the first half to keep up with a Madison team that ran the floor every chance it could.

The result was a frenetic first quarter that saw the host Panthers take a 21-20 lead on a Bryce Weber trey at the buzzer.

Anthony Martin's third 3-pointer of the half tied the game at 27-27 with 5:47 left in the second, but Corydon was unable to keep up the pace and as the game wore on, the Panthers wore down.

Luke Miller opened the second with nine-straight points for Madison and freshman Kaden Oliver began breaking down the defense, leading to easy shots by his teammates.

The result was a quick 15-4 run late in the second to allow Madison to build a 42-31 lead. Corydon closed the half with five-straight points but still trailed by six.

"Typically at the high school level you don't have five or six guys

HANOVER ROUNDUP

Men top Spartans to stay undefeated

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Kevin Williams scored 22 points and Isaac Hibbard added 19 as Hanover men's basketball remained unbeaten on the season with a 65-56 win over Manchester at home on Saturday.

The game was close throughout with the Panthers leading only 29-26 at halftime. It was still close over the final 20 minutes but Hanover made the plays it needed to pull out the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference win.

Williams was a near-perfect 10-of-11 from the field and 2-for-4 from the free-throw line to score his 22 points. The Columbus East High School product also had five rebounds.

Hibbard, from New Albany, contributed 19 points on 8-of-13 shooting as well as eight assists and five rebounds for the Panthers. Mark Albers scored 10 points and had eight rebounds and Logan Ratts failed to score but he had seven assists and three rebounds.

Cortiz Buckner scored 13 points and DeMoines Whitney had 11 points to lead Manchester.

Hanover will take this week off for final exams and return to action on Saturday when it travels to Defiance.

Nall leads women

Alexis Nall posted an impressive double-double of 30 points and 18 rebounds to lead Hanover women's basketball to a 72-65 win over Manchester in the Panthers' home opener on Saturday.

Nall, a senior from Mount Vernon who was a preseason all-American, lived up to her billing. Along with shooting 8-for-11 from the floor, Nall was 12-of-16 on free throws and hit two of the three 3-pointers that she attempted. In addition, she had four assists and four steals.

Hanover used a big second quarter to get the breathing room it needed. After building a 19-14 lead in the first, the Panthers outscored Manchester 19-8 in the second to take a 38-22 lead into the break.

The Spartans outscored Hanover by nine in the second half but it wasn't enough.

Along with Nall's huge game, Madison High School graduate Katie Hartman had 18 points and six rebounds for the Panthers.

Macy Miller scored 16 points and Hannah Lindsey scored 13 to lead Manchester.

Hanover, now 3-3 overall and 2-0 in the HCAC, takes the week off for final exams before returning to action on Saturday at Defiance.

Swimming at Transy

Hanover's swim teams competed in the Transylvania Invitational in Lexington, Kentucky over the weekend.

The Panther women won two events and placed third overall with 486 points while the men were fourth with 359. Hanover's combined score of 845 was good for fourth in the five-team field.

Ilys Anderson won the women's 100-yard freestyle in 54.39 and Maddie DiFillippo won the women's 100-yard butterfly in 59.89 to lead the Panthers.

Other top finishes for the Hanover women were: 200 free relay, second, 1:42.57; Olivia Loran, second, 100 breast, 1:11.47 and third, 50 free, 25.68; 200 medley relay, second, 1:54.03; Anderson, second, 50 free, 25.53 and second, 100 back, 1:00.99; 400 free relay, second, 3:49.63; Megan Quinn, third, 200 free, 2:08.00; and Megan Brandt, third, 1650 free, 20:15.38.

The Rebels put four players in double figures and shot over 65% in each half, including a 10-of-18 clip from the 3-point line for the night. Southwestern led 24-8 at the end of the first quarter and used a 19-5 run in the second quarter to forge a 43-13 halftime lead. The dominating surge was more than enough to put the game in cruise control early and the advantage got larger as the second half progressed.

"I thought tonight we dictated the outcome early," Southwestern head coach Jerry Bomholt said. "It was a fast tempo, we got the ball up the floor quickly and we were very confident offensively that they would have a hard time matching up with us. We have a good combination of guys who can drive to the basket but can also step out and shoot from the outside. It's really hard for a lot of teams to match up defensively against that."

Matthew Williams hit four 3-pointers in the first half and was 11-of-16 shooting for the game for a game-high 27 points while Billy Eccles was 6-of-8 from the field and added a career-high 20 points. Austin Kramer added 14 points on 6-of-11 from the field and Mitchell Cline scored 8 points in the second half en route to a career-high 10 points on a 5-of-6 shooting from the field. Foster Mefford had 10 assists to go along with six points and four rebounds.

Shawe was limited to only three players in the scoring column led by Chandler Cole's 15 points on 6-of-11 shooting from the field. Ethan Stuart was a perfect 6-of-6 from the field and finished with 13 points.

Southwestern (3-1, 1-0 ORVC) travels to Columbus East on Saturday.

Shawe (1-3, 0-2 ORVC) was to host Christian Academy of Madison on Monday.

Southwestern 57, Columbus East 49 (boys)

Southwestern survived a knee injury to leading scorer Matthew Williams just four minutes into the game to beat Columbus East 57-49 in boys basketball Saturday on the road.

Williams, who was averaging 19.5 points per game going in, dislocated his knee cap midway through the first quarter and had to be helped from the floor. While the knee did pop back into place, the 6-foot-3 junior missed the remainder of the game.

With Williams out of the action, Austin Kramer, Zach Coles and Billy Eccles each played 32 minutes in the contest and Foster Mefford played all but 25 seconds of the game. The quartet combined to score 55 of the Rebels' 57 points and secure the win.

"There was a lot of adversity and what a gutty performance by the kids that stepped in there," Southwestern coach Jerry Bomholt said. "We tried to milk things with Matthew hurt and (Mitchell) Cline in foul trouble and our kids responded really well. We obviously didn't play perfectly, but we did enough right things down the stretch, got the ball in the right places and just about everybody made a key play for us on the offensive end."

The game was tight throughout with the Rebels holding a 14-11 lead after the first quarter and just 27-26 at halftime. After building the lead back to four by the close of the third, Southwestern held on down the stretch.

Mefford led the Rebel with 17 points and also had seven rebounds, five assists and four steals. Kramer had 15 points and six steals, Eccles hit three 3-pointers and scored 13 points and Cole had 10 points and five rebounds.

Jacob Pierce scored 21 points and Tyler Boyer had 13 for the Olympians.

Southwestern, now 4-1 on the season, hosts New Washington on Saturday and then faces Thurgood Marshall (Ohio) on Saturday in the Tri-State Shootout at South Dearborn High School in Aurora.

Lady Cubs battle Jeff until the end

Pacers beat CAI to run win streak to 6-straight

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Madison's girls basketball battled Class 4A No. 10 Jeffersonville to the brink before falling 50-46 at home on Friday.

The Lady Cubs used a 19-9 third-quarter run to seize a 35-31 lead heading into the final frame. Jeffersonville responded with a big run of its own in the fourth to retake the lead.

Trailing by three in the waning seconds, Madison had a chance to tie but the attempt rimmed out. The Red Devils then hit a free throw for the final margin.

Madison's Jade Nutley held her own in the individual battle of 6-foot-1 all-star posts with Jeffersonville's Nan Garcia. Nutley, a junior, scored 22 points on 6-of-13 shooting with eight rebounds and an assist. Garcia, a senior who has signed with Penn State, had 20 points and 11 rebounds on 7-of-10 shooting.

Sophomore Taylor Lynch had a near triple-double with 11 points, nine rebounds and seven assists for the Cubs.

Madison, now 5-3 overall and 1-1 in the Hoosier Hills Conference, hosts New Washington on Tuesday.

Pacers beat Trimble

Switzerland County pulled away in the second half to post a 60-51 win over Trimble County in boys basketball Friday in Vevay.

The Pacers and Raiders battled through three quarters with Switzerland taking a 44-40 lead into the fourth after Damion Breeck nailed a 3-pointer at the buzzer.

Switzerland then out-scored Trimble 16-11 in the fourth to seal the win.

Breeck finished the game with 19 points to lead all scorers while Zach Weaver had 16 points and Landon Wilks had 11 for the Pacers.

Beau Turner led Trimble with 14 points and Dylan Jennings scored 10.

On Saturday, Switzerland suffered its first loss of the season, 65-56 at Crothersville.

Coby Chase had 19 points and Breeck scored 15 to lead the Pacers. Ben Hicks added 12 points.

Switzerland, now 2-1 on the season, travels to South Decatur on Tuesday and hosts Rising Sun on Friday. Trimble, now 1-2, hosts Owen County on Tuesday and North Oldham on Wednesday.

Pacers' streak now 6

Switzerland County's girls basketball team improved to 7-1 on the season with a 37-10 win at Christian Academy of Indiana on Saturday.

It was a low-scoring affair from the start. The Pacers jumped out to an 11-2 lead after the first quarter but held just a 17-6 advantage at the break. After outscoring Christian Academy 8-2 in the third, Switzerland won the fourth 12-2 to pull away.

The Pacers will take the week off before opening Ohio River Valley Conference play at Shawe on Saturday.

Trimble girls win two

Trimble County girls basketball knocked off Carroll County 50-37 in Carrollton on Friday to claim their first win of the season.

Shelby Wilcoxson had 17 points and Abby Ponder scored 11 to lead Trimble.

On Saturday, Trimble knocked off Louisville Waggener 56-32.

Wilcoxson scored 21 points and Ponder had 14 to lead the Raiders. Colby O'Connor added eight points and Emma Horn had seven.

Trimble, now 2-1 overall and 1-0 in the North Central Kentucky Conference, travels to Oldham County on Friday for a boys-girls doubleheader. The Raiders then play Southwestern on Saturday in Hanover.

CAM falls in tourney

Christian Academy of Madison had its nine-game win streak snapped in the championship game of the Southern Roads Conference Tournament on Saturday.

The Defenders opened the tourney on Friday with a 53-41 win over Evansville Christian and a 64-48 win over Union (Dugger). But Cannelton stopped CAM's run with a 50-36 win in the championship game on Saturday.

Now 9-1 on the season, Christian Academy travels to Shawe on Monday. The Defenders then host Southeast HomeSchool on Friday.

WRESTLING

Madison suffers 1st loss but places 2nd at Fugate

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Madison wrestling suffered its first dual meet loss of the season but still finished second in the Fugate Memorial Tournament at Scottsburg on Saturday for a second-straight year.

On Friday, the Cubs defeated Paoli 66-12, Switzerland County 63-12, Salem 59-24 and New Washington 66-12. On Saturday, Madison beat Southwestern 48-33, host Scottsburg 54-24, Silver Creek 71-0, and Jennings County 63-18 but lost 39-31 to Seymour.

"It was a great performance today by our young Cubs. We had several out with injury and still were able to compete," Madison coach Tyson Skinner said. "We still have a ways to go to be able to compete with the top tier teams in our conference but we are getting there."

Three Cub wrestlers finished the tournament undefeated and four others went 8-1.

Mason Long (152 pounds), Dalton Berry (182) and Van Skinner (170) each went 9-0 while Bryce Turner (113), Noah Burkhardt (120), Jacob McRoberts (126) and Tucker Adams (220) were each 8-1.

Emmett Willhite (138) and Trenton Stockdale (160) each went 7-2 on the day, Louis Humes (145) was 5-2, Brayden Richards (132) and Colin Fulton (195) each went 4-5, and Blake Ashby (285) was 3-2.

"Van had a very good win over a returning semistate qualifier," Tyson Skinner said. "He gave up an early takedown but quickly got the escape then went on to win by pin in the 1st period."

In addition to wrestling at Scottsburg, Madison sent several wrestlers to the Hoosier Hills Conference Duals at Jeffersonville on Saturday.

Luke McCarty (145 pounds) went 3-2, Tazman Shipley was 2-3 and Dylan Fulton (285) won his only match.

"We had eight of 12 of our wrestlers travel to Jeff Duals and learned a great deal and despite some injuries we still had some good showings," Skinner said.

Southwestern went 7-2 overall during the weekend and placed third overall. The Rebels defeated Switzerland County 51-12, Paoli 45-20, New Washington 54-18, Jennings County 52-24, Scottsburg 58-18, Silver Creek 64-0, and Salem 46-24. Along with the loss to Madison, the Rebels also lost to tournament champion Seymour 41-35.

Elijah Weatherbee (106), Cameron Canada (120), Brandon Smith (145/152) and Brady McLain (195/220) each went 9-0 on the day for the Rebels while Clifton Hendrickson (132) was 8-1.

Mitchell Adcock (170) and Kyler Brooks (182) each went 7-2, Skyler Hall (152) was 2-1, Logan Birchfield (285) was 5-3, Matthew Douglas (195/220) was 4-4, Joey Goins (126) was 3-3, and Dawson Lichlyter (138) went 3-6.

Full results for Switzerland County were not available, but Mike Galbreath picked up wins over Madison by forfeit and Southwestern's Birchfield by fall at 285 pounds, Jacob Wolf pinned Madison's Richards at 132, and Austin Wolf pinned Southwestern's Goins at 126.

Madison, now 19-1 overall on the season, travels to North Harrison on Tuesday, Southwestern hosts Charlestown on Wednesday. Switzerland County hosts Scottsburg on Thursday, Dec. 19.

capable of scoring 20. We have a luxury that a lot of teams don't have," Wilkerson said. "I'm trying to get these guys to understand that every single night it's going to be a different leading scorer because of the way we play and I'll be honest with you, I never thought they would buy into that this fast."

Madison (3-1) blew open the game in the third. After the two teams traded buckets, Nick Center scored on a short jumper to kick-start a 12-0 run that pushed the lead to 18 (56-38). Madison's depth was on full display with five different players scoring during the run.

After leading 64-47 at the end of the third, Madison closed out the game to claim the win.

Miller scored 24 points to lead the Cubs but it was a breakout performance by Oliver that left people talking. The freshman scored a career-high 21 points on three 3-pointers and a variety of drives to the basket that left the Panthers scrambling to stop him.

"He is well beyond his years. He's played on the AAU circuit for most of his career and I think that's contributed to a lot of his success," Wilkerson said. "He's ultra-mature. He doesn't get rattled, he handles pressure well and he's just a fantastic kid. They're all fantastic kids. Every coach has his challenges, but it is a true joy to coach this team."

Weber scored 18 points to lead Corydon while Jacob Eve scored 12.

Madison 64, Jennings Co. 60 — Madison used strong second and fourth quarters to pull out a Hoosier Hills Conference win over Jennings County, 64-60 in boys basketball Friday in North Vernon.

The Cubs trailed 19-16 after the first but sailed into the break with a 39-29 lead after outscoring the Panthers 23-10 in the second quarter.

Jennings turned the table in the third and closed to within two but Madison was able to hold on down the stretch for the win.

"This is an absolutely fantastic win," Wilkerson said. "We built that lead and we told them at halftime that Jennings was going to make a run at us. We responded. We showed heart, perseverance, unity, discipline. There were many times where our guys could quit but our guys pushed. They pushed."

Miller scored 21 points to lead Madison while Mason Welsh had 15. Aaron Martin had 21 to lead Jennings County.

After four road games to open the season, Madison finally comes home on Friday when it hosts South Dearborn.

Santa visits Madison

A Very Merry Madison brings holidays downtown

Crows lined the streets Saturday for A Very Merry Madison Christmas Parade. Floats, businesses and bands moved through Main Street in Downtown Madison. (Courier staff photos by Mark Campbell)

Youthful participants were aboard many of the floats.

One of the groups walking in the parade was Girls Inc. Others included the winner and runner ups in the Regatta Queen contest and the local high school marching bands.

Lyra and Sadie Shahbabian play with a reindeer headband worn by Jill Shahbabian while watching the parade.

Jordan Jester and Lacy Lauderbaugh were a few of the many people who visited downtown Madison to watch the parade.

Twins MacKenzie and McKayla sit next to Nevaeh Kent along Main Street.

BRIDGE

CAN THE PLAY HELP YOUR SIDE?

Marie Curie said during a lecture at Vassar College, "(Scientific work) must be done for itself, for the beauty of science, and then there is always the chance that a scientific discovery may become, like radium, a benefit for humanity."

At the bridge table, do not make plays that benefit only the opponents. In today's deal, how should East defend against four spades after West leads the diamond five, and dummy covers with the nine?

South cue-bid two clubs to show a maximum pass. Then North bid aggressively in jumping to game opposite a partner who could not open the bidding.

When East covered dummy's diamond nine with his king, South took the trick and played a spade to the nine. East won and gave his partner a diamond ruff, but declarer won the next trick with the club ace and ran the heart queen. When that held, South continued with a trump to the queen and ace, and took dummy's two diamond winners, discarding his heart nine. Declarer lost one spade, one club and the diamond ruff.

East should have realized that his partner had led from either a singleton or a doubleton. So, covering dummy's diamond nine with the king was pointless; it benefited only declarer, giving him four diamond winners immediately.

If East had played low, probably South would have won with his diamond 10 and taken the spade finesse. East would have won and given his partner a diamond ruff. Then West would have exited with the club king, and the contract would have failed if West did not cover the heart queen (the first of touching honors), but did cover if declarer continued with the heart jack

Harkening back to less hardware

Annie Lane

Dear Annie: I am the proud owner of a flip cellphone, and I probably wouldn't have it if public telephones still existed. I use about 100 minutes a month and have sent, in my lifetime, no more than 300 text messages, most of them one or two words in response to a text sent to me. I use no data. I still use physical maps to navigate car trips.

However, I use a computer at my job for most of the day, so it's not like I'm a Luddite.

But I say all this because I notice an increasing separation between myself and much of the rest of society, even my wife to some extent, regarding phone use. My wife has a smartphone and is on it frequently. I wouldn't say she's on it too much, at least compared to a lot of other smartphone users. She has hobbies besides her phone, but I've noticed that the phone eats up more of her time than consumer technologies did years ago.

I notice, too, when I go to parks with my kids or take them to swimming lessons or soccer practice that many parents sit there looking at their phones. And I just shake my head, shocked at how quickly everything has changed in a mere 10 years or so.

I'm in my early 40s but feel like I'm in my 70s, wishing for the "good old days." I'm not so much angry as I am saddened.

Am I alone in feeling this detachment from our device-centric world? I'm curious if any of your readers are troubled by these trends? — Doesn't Compute

Dear Doesn't Compute: Thank you for your letter. You raise a very important conversation. On the one hand, technology is absolutely amazing and has helped our society in so many ways. But it can also be dangerous when used too much. Social connections, face to face, are the healthiest form of connections. Being able to really see another person is a gift that we can all give to each other.

That gift is often lost because of texting or other forms of social media. I think you might be onto something that people are increasingly wishing for the good ol' days when we were not bombarded with a constant blue light glow. That they make glasses that block the hazardous blue lights of our phones and devices shows that this problem is becoming increasingly widespread.

On the one hand, screens have reduced boredom; there's always something to see, read or watch. On the other hand, they have taken away boredom, which can become a space where creativity and imagination bloom. This is especially true with children. You sound wise beyond your years. I commend you for bringing back the flip phone.
